L.V. Lomas Opens a New Office in Seattle

Rising in the west

L.V. Lomas is very pleased to announce the opening of our new Seattle office. While this expansion to the U.S. Pacific Northwest once again extends our reach, it also counts as a massive enrichment of our overall product/service offering to our customers.

Going big for customers and principals

For over 8 years we've been servicing industrial markets within the Pacific Northwest. The new Seattle office expands our ability to support our Food and Specialty Chemical customers and principals in the region through added logistical support, quality management and development of promising new business opportunities.

Our best and brightest running new shop

Key Lomas staff will oversee the Seattle operation. They bring with them experience, energy and a relentless commitment to the industry's best customer service. Lomas-trained professionals are now on site and keen to respond to your needs on the West Coast and – in tandem with our recently opened Shanghai office – the Pacific Rim.

Giant steps toward a more international presence

This is another big step for us. Until recently, we've been a largely Canada-focused enterprise. Opening a new home in the bustling port city of Seattle counts as a landmark moment in the aggressive growth strategy we've set down. A strong presence in the Pacific Northwest means ready access to vast new markets, and significantly enhances our value to existing and future customers and principals.
